

Scientific Intelligence

SECRET

Tentative Chart, 22 July 1946, Organization, CIG

TECHNICAL AND SCIENTIFIC BRANCH, ~~OR~~EVALUATION

1. Determines the requirements for world wide intelligence in the fields of gm, cw, electronics, bacteriology, munitions of war and explosives, industry, raw materials, and other technical and scientific developments as may affect the national security of the United States.
2. ***
3. Conducts necessary research, analysis, and evaluation of information relative to above fields in order that capabilities and intentions of foreign powers' industrial potential may be determined in relation to its effect on the national security of the U.S.
4. Reviews, integrates and evaluates information and intelligence provided by other agencies of the government relating to the fields of technology and science, and prepares such strategic and national policy studies, estimates, summaries, etc., as may be required by the various agencies of the government.
5. Maintains ... Liaison with government research and development activities in ...technology and science as necessary to keep abreast of plans and accomplishments which may assist in the evaluation of capabilities of foreign efforts .

HS/DCI files; Admin Orders CIG 1-25, incl